The anniversary of Mexican independence passed off very quietly at this place, last Monday. The national salute was fired and appropriate decorations were made at many private residences. A dance was given at the Court House on Monday night and a very enjoyable time was experienced.

The National Bank of California, at Los Angeles, has opened its doors for business, with a capital of $250,000. Among its directors appear the names of Gen. M. H. Sherman, of Phoenix, and Mr. Perry Wildman, formerly of this place, the latter being assistant cashier. Mr. Wildman's extensive and favorable acquaintance throughout southern Arizona will doubtless give a great deal of business of this section to that bank and in many ways aid in the transaction of business with that institution.

CASA GRANDE NOTES.

Mr. Geo. A. Brown contemplates erecting a building adjoining the ice works, for the purpose of cold storage. The building will be of great value to the people of this valley, affording facilities for several enterprises. The merchants of Florence import all their lard and bacon at an outlay of about $20,000 per annum. To those who have attempted to cure meat, losses have invariably followed, and not later than last year, Gen. J. B. Allen and Mr. Jas. Brash attempted to cure bacon but there was no way by which the animal heat could be taken out of the meat. Experienced meat packers say our climate is not a hindrance and, to prove their assertion, one has only to look at the quotations of a Sacramento firm, that cure hams and bacon. Their products stand equal with those of the Eastern firms. The Sacramento Valley climate would have the same effect upon meats as that of this valley, if it were not for the cold facilities. Every rancher in this valley should and can raise at least a few hogs with the feed that is now wasted on the ranch. A hog eight months old will bring about ten dollars. The rancher must have some source of income beyond their crop of grain, to derive any profits from their labors. The merchants in many instances are compelled to carry the accounts of many farmers from year to year, and it is only a question of time when some of them will be compelled to sell their possessions. The small income derived from eggs, butter, chickens and fruit, may look insignificant to some, but the thriving settlement of Mesa City was all built up by just such a trade that it enjoyed with Silver King and Pinal. As a result, you have houses and large fields of alfalfa. The people in this section should begin to realize the necessity for a change. There is no better enough made here for the local demand. Some of it comes from Mesa City, some from the California, but very little is made at home and yet it brings the good price of 55c per pound. At least $200 goes out of town every month for this article alone. All cities use the cold storage for meats; the carcasses not going to the block for several days after being slaughtered. Mr. Brown will have facilities for storing carcasses of beef, mutton and pork, and he may ship in butter this winter from California to supply the market next summer. It is questionable whether one gets butter or oleomargarine in the California product. There is a good opening for some one of push and enterprise to take hold of the butter and meat project in connection with the cold storage to be provided by Mr. Brown.

There was a terrible epidemic of dysentery and bloody flux in Pope County, Illinois, last summer. As many as five deaths occurred in one day. Messrs. Walter Brothers, of Waterbury, sold over 380 bottles of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy during this epidemic and say they never heard of its failing in any case when the directions were followed. It was the only medicine used that did cure the worst cases. Many persons were cured by it after the doctors had given them up. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Thos. F. Weed.

The Schools.

The public schools opened last Monday with a large attendance of pupils, some of the rooms being overcrowded. The trustees have arranged to run a partition across the east room of the lower story of the school house and to employ an additional teacher. They have engaged the services of Miss Parmer, a New York lady now in Tucson, who will take one of the primary classes. The present school building was thought by many residents of Florence a few years ago to be altogether too large for ten years to come, and it will soon be found necessary to establish one or two new schools.

The trustees are exerting their best efforts to make the school a model institution of learning and agreeable to this policy they have selected teachers with especial regard to their qualifications and efficiency. There is no question as to the success of their efforts in this direction and, for the size of the place, no better schools can be found anywhere, east or west. In their efforts in this cause they deserve the encouragement and co-operation of all good people.

Death of John A. Banks.

A telegram was received by Mr. Geo. A. Brown, agent of Wells, Fargo & Co., last Monday evening, informing him of the death, at Mill City, Nevada, of Mr. John A. Banks, a former resident of this place and an old employee of the Express company. When Wells, Fargo & Co. withdrew their treasure-carrying business in Arizona, about four years ago, Mr. Banks, who was a messenger of the company here, was ordered to California and went to Nevada quite recently and ended his days, probably with his family. He was well known in Pinal county where his friends were numerous. He was a member of Florence Lodge No. 4, A. O. U. W. In good standing, and his sorrowing widow will receive the $2,000 order pledges itself to pay upon the death of a brother. No particulars of his death have come to hand.

CASA GRANDE, Sept. 18th, 1889.

EDITOR ENTERPRISE: Thought I would drop you a few lines as we have taken a run up here from Maricopa to have a clean bed, cheerful room and pleasant surroundings at the Fryer Hotel for one night and will return on tomorrow's train for Phoenix, our destination. The weather is lovely here and accommodations way up. The school house is being painted, fenced in and furnished for the little ones. Numerous windmills make the town look cheerful and are useful in case of fire and for irrigation. The remains of an unknown man were found near the track six miles from Casa Grande station. The body was half eaten by coyotes and very much decomposed. One more unfortunate with a mystery never to be told.

Rejoice from the mines are very promising.

Travel seems to be brisk as the hotels are full and doing well.

There are two restaurants, four saloons, two livery stables, Marshall and McCoy, prop; also plenty of building material here and lots of land to improve, and good land too, as from the appearance of several trees set out in front of Fryer Hotel four months ago which are looking fine, showing that care and water is all that is wanted to make this soil yield plentifully of any thing planted.

Yours Truly,

"YE EVERLASTING DRUMMER."

THE CONFLICT OF AUTHORITY.

The Views of a Candid, Impartial and Unprejudiced Gentleman Upon the Subject.

Realizing the great importance of the deplorable condition of affairs occasioned by the dual government in Arizona, and believing the time has arrived when the business men, taxpayers miners and laborers should be heard upon the subject and that a halt must be called and the true interests of Arizona looked after, The Enterprise designated a special representative to interview Ex-Governor A. P. K. Safford, in Tucson, upon the subject. His views on all important questions are always sound and practical and in the present instance they will be read with increased interest by the people. The following is the result of the interview with Gov. Safford:

Rep.—In view of the conflict of authority of the territorial officers, will you kindly give your views as to the best methods of settling the same.

Gov.—It is an unfortunate condition of affairs and should be harmonized and settled as speedily as possible, but I prefer not to become entangled in the controversy.

Rep.—We do not expect you to take sides in any factional fight, but as a matter of public policy and for the good of the territory we should very much appreciate any suggestions you might make relative to a settlement of the difficulties.

Gov.—As to the matter of the legality of the hold-over officers or those appointed by Gov. Wolfley, have nothing to say. It is now for the court to decide. I have no doubt Gov. Wolfley conscientiously believed he had a legal right to make said appointments, and I have no doubt that the hold-overs are equally conscientious in believing they have a legal right to hold the offices. As a matter of political propriety it would have been a gracious act on their part to have stepped down and out and allowed the new Governor to make the appointments from his own partisan friends, what they may have had to say to their legal rights; but as they did not see proper to do this, the conflict of a double set of officers was forced upon the territory, and in the contest that is going on the people of the territory are very much in the position of a man who is being pulled in two directions by a load of hay to market; the wagon turned over and threw the hay in the mud, the horses became entangled in the difficulty and were liable to be seriously injured, when a gentleman came along and found the boy tearing his hair and in a few moments he had tried to comfort the boy and told him they soon would get the horses extracted and the hay put back in proper place, when he screamed that he did not care a—d—for the horses nor the hay, but that that was under the wheel and that was what was the matter.

So it is in this conflict; the people could look on the fight for the supremacy of the officials with indifference, but the Territory is at the bottom of the load and that is what is the matter.

I am informed that since this conflict arose, not a dollar has been paid for the support of the territorial prison or the asylum. Whoever furnishes their supplies will necessarily charge an extra sum for compensation for the delay and risks. Territorial warrants, I am informed, have fallen from par to sixty-five cents on the dollar and no buyers now at that figure. The assessment of property and collection of taxes is seriously endangered by this conflict, and the good name of the territory and its financial credit is being seriously impaired; while the rate of taxation is burdensome in the extreme. This conflict cannot be settled by calling each other hard names, and if there ever was a time when all the officials and people should pause and see what can be done to extricate the country from this unfortunate condition, now is the time, and this can only be accomplished by forbearance and mutual concession.

When the new officials were appointed and qualified they demanded the surrender of the several offices from the old officials, which was refused. I believe from that time to the present it is conceded that the only way the new officials can get possession of the archives, seals and offices occupied by the old officials is through the courts, and so long as this question is undetermined by the courts there is no legal power to take from these officials books, papers, seals, etc., or to drive them from the occupancy of the several offices and buildings owned by the territory, such as the insane asylum, territorial prison, etc., and I believe that the only way to settle this question is by the courts.

If I am correct in this position the matter if treated in this way is a very simple one; the officers transact the business of the Territory until the courts decide the conflict, and the wheels of government can move smoothly along; the debts can be paid, the insane and criminals can be cared for, there will be no risk of illegal assessment or collection of taxes, and in good time the courts can decide who are the rightful officers, and the matter is decided by a good citizen ought, and no doubt with, yield a willing obedience.

Rep.—It is assumed by some that Gov. Wolfley, having made his appointments, he is in honor bound to recognize them as the only official authority.

Gov.—Yes, I am of the same opinion that he should do so to the extent of his legal ability; but how can he do it except through the courts? Until the courts decide the question he cannot force them to recognize the appointments of the Asylum and the Penitentiary out of those buildings; he cannot secure the seals and archives that belong to the said offices that are necessary to the transaction of the business of the several departments of the government. He is not clothed with legal powers, and must rest his official duties to the executive branch of the government. When the courts decide this question and the officers refuse to obey its mandates, it will be his duty to use all the power vested in him to see that the law is adjusted by the courts, faithfully executed. As I have said before, this contest now going on is far reaching and of grave importance to the people of this Territory. If it was only a fight between a few officers it would amount to a little; but "Dad" is under the load of hay, and if "Dad" is rescued alive something must soon be done to stop this conflict of authority and allow the wheels of government to roll on.

It is just probable that you may have to ask Congress to aid you in congressional legislation before your conflicts can all be harmonized, but no one believes that Congress could give you relief with the present exasperated feeling that exists here over those questions. At the present time, hence the importance and necessity of the change of bitterness and vituperation to a candid, business like and fair settlement of the whole question, so that if you have to go before Congress for relief you can do so with a united front.

Rep.—What do you think of the personal abuse of Gov. Wolfley?

Gov.—I do not approve of it. If he has made mistakes, just criticism no one could object to. The position of Governor at best is a trying one. Gov. Wolfley has been a very able and efficient administrator and should be given a fair trial. Certainly personal abuse of the Governor is of no benefit to the Territory nor is it the best way to change a policy you do not approve.

HE SENT IT EAST.

For a year I was troubled with pains in my back and side, and headaches, the result of liver and kidney trouble. I was started to my feet by a bottle of Dr. J. C. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which I had bought at a drug store. I had been told that it was a purely vegetable preparation, by the startling testimonials in the papers and although prejudiced against such things generally, they seemed so practical I was induced to try it, knowing that as it was purely vegetable, it would at any rate do no harm. It was pleasant to take and acted as a laxative. After the second bottle my pains had subsided and I was able to get on my feet. It did so much for me that I sent several bottles to my family in New Jersey, who also took it with the most satisfactory results.

J. C. Williams, Dr. of Medicine, 100 North Second Street, New York.
